The Vancouver style of referencing is predominantly used in the medical field.

When referencing your work in the Vancouver style, it is very important that you use the right punctuation and that the order of details in the reference is also correct. This guide is based on AMA Manual of Style and the NLM Style Guide for Authors, Editors, and Publishers.

Note: Before you write your list of references, check with your lecturer or tutor for the bibliographic style preferred by the School. There may be differences in the style recommended by the School.

What is referencing?

Referencing is a standardised way of acknowledging the sources of information and ideas that you have used in your assignments and which allows the sources to be identified. It is important to be consistent when you are referencing.

Why reference?

Referencing is important to avoid plagiarism, to verify quotations and to enable readers to follow up what you have written and more fully understand the cited author's work.

Steps in referencing

- Record the full bibliographic details and relevant page numbers of the source from which information is taken.
- Punctuation marks and spaces in the reference list and citations are very important. Follow the punctuation and spacing exactly.
- Insert the citation at the appropriate place in the text of your document.
- Include a reference list that includes all in-text citations at the end of your document.

In-text citations

- A citation is an acknowledgement in your text of references that support your work. It is in the form of a number that correlates with a source in your reference list.
- In the Vancouver Style, citations within the text of the essay/paper are identified by Arabic numbers in round brackets or Arabic numbers in superscript. This applies to references in text, tables and figures.
- The EndNote referencing style software uses the Arabic number in brackets eg. (2)
- The identification of references within the text of the essay/paper may vary according to the preferred style of the journal or the preferred style of the department or lecturer. For example superscript may be preferred when referencing. eg. Example²
- The Vancouver System assigns a number to each reference as it is cited. A number must be used even if the author(s) is named in the sentence/text. e.g. Smith (10) has argued that...
- The original number assigned to the reference is reused each time the reference is cited in the text, regardless of its previous position in the text.
- When multiple references are cited at a given place in the text, use a hyphen to join the first and last numbers that are inclusive. Use commas (without spaces) to separate non-inclusive numbers in a multiple citation e.g. (2,3,4,5,7,10) is abbreviated to (2-5,7,10).
- Do not use a hyphen if there are no citation numbers in between that support your statement e.g. (1-2).
- The placement of citation numbers within text should be carefully considered e.g. a particular reference may be relevant to only part of a sentence. As a general rule, reference numbers should be placed outside full stops and commas and inside colons and semicolons, however, this may vary according to the requirements of a particular journal.

- Examples –
- There have been efforts to replace mouse inoculation testing with invitro tests, such as enzyme linked immunosorbent assays (57,60) or polymerase chain reaction
- (20-22) but these remain experimental.
- Moir and Jessel maintain “that the sexes are interchangeable”.(1)
- Citing a specific page:
- eg. Patients showed no signs of diabetes.^{1(p23),9}
- eg. Smithers^{2(pp3,6)} reported no sign of... (more than one page cited)
- eg. Jones 10(pp23-27) states that...
- Note the EndNote program will put the reference number and pages within the bracket eg. ...end of story.(10 p23,11) for multiple pages (10 pp23-5,11)

How to create a reference list/bibliography

- A reference list contains details only of those works cited in the text of the document. (eg. book, journal article, pamphlet, internet site, cassette tape or film). These details must include sufficient detail so that others may locate and consult your references.
- A bibliography is a separate list from the reference list and should be arranged alphabetically by author or title (where no author is given) in the Vancouver style.
- A bibliography lists sources not cited in the text but which are relevant to the subject and were used for background reading.
- A reference list should appear at the end of your essay/report with the entries listed numerically and in the same order that they have been cited in the text.
- Sources cited from the Internet should be in your reference list.

Referencing Software

The University of Queensland Library provides access to EndNote which assists in creating reference lists. The Vancouver Style is included with the Endnote program. You can also download an additional Vancouver Style from the UQ Library that includes the “Vancouver Style Guide to Electronic References” at: <http://www.library.uq.edu.au/faqs/endnote/styles.html>
